At one time during the afternoon it was umored that Secretary Root and his assistant, Mr. Robert Bacon, had been in conference with the leading banking interests, and had given assurances of a modification in the administration's attitude toward the corporations, and later in the day this story was modified into a report that Mr. Root had decided to withdraw from the Cabinet as a protest gainst policies which, if continue inevitably lead to a most serious disturbance of general business conditions and great loss to the holders of investment

Both Stories Are Denied.

In both its versions the story wa unqualifiedly denied, and it came to b regarded as not improbable that th administration may realize what a tremen dous injustice might be done to the stock holders of a corporation by the impos tion of heavy fines, amounting, practic ally, to the appropriation of a great par of their property on account of a violation of law by some officials of the company without the consent of the reatwhere, or even at a direct sacrifice of their property.

There is no doubt whatever that if th President, or some one entitled to speak with authority, said that the Department of Justice, instead of proceeding against corporations for alleged violations of the law prohibiting the granting or paymen of rebates, would hereafter direct if energies toward locating the particula official responsible for the violation the law, and inflicting upon him exem plary punishment, the would be regarded as decidedly reassur ing, and would go a long way toward re storing the confidence of investors violently shaken by the policies hereto fore pursued.

Investment Buying Results in Strength to Market.

APPEAL TO SECRETARY ROOT

Leading Bankers Believed to Have tic Feeling Is Somewhat Relieved.

New York, Aug. 13 .- In the early trading to-day many of the shorts began covering on what they considered the bad news of an interview with John D. Rockefeller; with the Standard Oil magnate quoted as saying that "The runaway policy of the present administrations means disaster to the country. financial depression, and financial chaos. Traders satisfied with their profits figured that many holders would be impelled to liquidate. The traders reckoned on buying this liquidating stock to cover their contracts, and many of them were of the opinion that very extensive short covering could be completed without bringing about a very brisk rally. The idea worked well in the morning, for, despite a large amount of investment buying, whatever covering took place up to noon was transacted rather easily. Many of the professionals were encouraged by this development to put out new lines, and the market, after a bit of rally, was sagging, when the reports of arbitration between Washington and Wall street broke out afresh. These reports changed the then bluish complex-

Commission houses concurred in the report that investment buying was much greater than had been expected. It was mostly in odd lots, but in the aggregate it was greater than on any day since the March panie, though not of as considerable magnitude as then occurred. The public apparently had waited until prices broke well below the March figures be-21% fore sending in its orders in large

Many of the orders, it was noticeable yesterday, were from officers of small interior banks and from small merchants in the interior, and, as is customary on such occasions, they came in every imaginable form. One broker had an order to buy five shares each of thirty stocks, which the customer may well have spent the entire summer in picking out. Lanston Monotype. Others were not so definite. One customer wanted his broker to buy twenty shares of a stock now selling above par when it got twenty points below par. The commission in this case looked a bit too indefinite to be satisfactory for a practical man.

Among the small-lot orders there were nany selling orders. Every commission house bought largely Lincoln on balance in its small-lot business.

William A. Mearns, of Johnson Broth-ers, was in the city yesterday for a LARDenjoyment of his vacation at Lake Pla-cid. He came to Washington to look after some important business interests.

G. Bowie Chipman, of E. R. Chapman & Co.—"Although extremely erratic, and subject to several violent movements, there was lacking in to-day's market that sensational disregard of values so characteristic of yesterday's session. The higher London prices steadied our opening, which, though irregular, was fairly steady. Soon prices started downward. ing, which, though irregular, was fairly steady. Soon prices started downward. In the fore part of the afternoon the shorts attempted to house some profits and the liquidation having either ceased entirely or being temporarily suspended, offerings were scarce, and before long. offerings were scarce, and before long a spirited rally was in progress. This carried the general list up from one to three points, while Reading, Copper, the Hills. and Union Pacific recovered from 4 to 512 points. The rally was too quick, and gain stock was met, and from that time until the closing the market sagged, leavng the final figures from 1 to about 31/2 points better than last night. Unquestionably, the short interest has been, to a certain extent, eliminated, and this would remove from the market a sustaining feature in case of further drives. Almost always when a drastic decline is succeeded by a rapid partial recovery, a subsequent sagging movement sets in. We would adhere to the policy of selling stocks on any rapid recovery."
